You can also note down your thoughts on slips of paper.

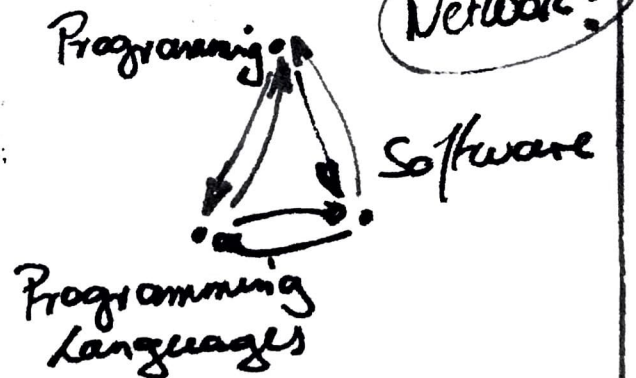

You need to scan them and add a filename manually.

Though I find writing thoughts on paper beneficial if I want to express ideas that get more easily explained via a sketch, a chart, etc. like explaining that other knowledge management systems often create a network of thoughts. The Zettelkasten is different because it creates a tree of thoughts:

It is easier for the brain to handle linear structures, e.g., books, than networks (like Wikipedia).

Look at VIEWS/index and notice that this zettel has two successors. Take a look at both!
